1 Purpose

PLEASE NOTE: All human resource management policy instruments are currently under review to ensure alignment with the new Enterprise Agreement. Contact the People Portfolio for more information.

To outline the applicable probationary period and associated requirements for continuing and fixed-term appointments.

2 Scope

This Procedure applies to all continuing and fixed-term appointments.

Exclusions: Employees whose conditions of employment are covered by a written agreement or contract with the University.

3 Procedure Overview

This Procedure details the process and conditions relating to probationary appointments.

4 Procedures

4.1 Probationary period

At the commencement of employment, Employees appointed on a continuing basis will serve a probationary period and undertake reviews at the intervals set out below.

Employee Classification	Probationary Period	Probationary Reviews will normally be conducted on or before:
Professional Employees	6 months	2nd month and 5th month
English Language Teaching Employees	12 months	3rd month, 8th month and 11th month
Academic Employees	up to 3 years	12th month, 24th month, 30th month

If, during the probationary period, an Employee is granted any continuous periods of leave totalling more than 20 days (including periods of leave for maternity or illness/injury purposes but excluding annual leave), the initial probationary period will be suspended. When the Employee returns to work, the probationary period nominated above will resume and will normally be extended by the period of leave taken.

For fixed-term appointments of one year or less, in any classification, a maximum probationary period of three months will apply. All other fixed-term appointments extending beyond one year will be subject to a probationary period of normally one-third of the fixed-term appointment. Any second or subsequent fixed-term appointment in the same classification level and/or in the same functional area will not contain a probationary period.

In exceptional circumstances, the probationary period may be waived or shortened. The usual probationary period can be waived or shortened by a recommendation of the selection panel to the Vice-Chancellor. In making the recommendation/decision, the selection panel and the Vice-Chancellor will have regard to prior service, qualifications, experience and the performance of the appointee in their previous position. A decision to waive, shorten or apply a probationary period will be stated in the Employee's letter of appointment.

An existing Employee moving to a new position within the University will not normally be required to serve a probationary period provided the Employee has satisfactorily completed their initial probationary employment with the University. However, in exceptional circumstances, a probationary period may apply.

4.2 Performance reviews

Following commencement of a new Employee, the People Portfolio will provide the Delegate with instructions and timelines for the completion of necessary probationary reviews. Further information on the performance review process can be found in the Performance Planning and Review Policy.

The Delegate will ensure that performance reviews are carried out by the due date.

Where probationary reviews are not carried out or not reasonably documented by the due date, it will be assumed that such Procedures were not necessary and the Employee's performance will be deemed to be satisfactory.

4.3 Confirmation of appointment

Following the last probationary review the Delegate will make a written recommendation by the due date to the Chief People Officer confirming or terminating the appointment. The Employee will be advised of the decision in writing.

4.4 Termination of appointment

The Employee's appointment may be terminated at any time during the probationary period in accordance with the provisions and Procedures contained within the Termination of Employment Procedure.

4.5 Documentation

The documentation to be used for the probationary process is available from the People Portfolio website.

All completed documentation will be retained by the faculty or section on a confidential file until the end of the process.
