Employee Induction and Onboarding Procedure

1 Purpose
To ensure all Employees are provided with key Information on working at the University including Policies, Procedures, compliance requirements and legislation associated with their employment through an appropriate Induction and Onboarding program.

2 Scope
This Procedure is applicable to all Employees.

Exclusions: Employees engaged as exam Supervisors, dissertation markers and teaching practicum Supervisors (prac teachers) are excluded from the requirement to complete the mandatory corporate online Induction program.

3 Procedure Overview
This Procedure details the Induction and Onboarding requirements at the University, both at the corporate and work area level.

4 Procedures
Employees newly appointed to the University are required to participate in an Induction and Onboarding program to assist them to adjust to their new responsibilities and work environment, and integrate them into the University brand, values, culture and benefits.

The Induction and Onboarding program will be conducted over the Employee's initial period of employment, with mandatory compliance training requirements to be refreshed annually thereafter.

4.1 Advice to new Employees and Supervisors
The People Portfolio will inform Employees of the requirement to participate in Induction and Onboarding programs upon commencement. Appropriate access and documentation will be provided to the Employee in order to have this completed in a timely manner.

Induction and Onboarding guidelines are available for Supervisors regarding the importance of the Induction and Onboarding process.
4.2 Induction and Onboarding programs

Employees will normally participate in both a corporate Induction program and a local or work area specific Onboarding or orientation program.

All Employees are required to be active participants throughout their Induction and Onboarding program. This includes seeking additional Information, assistance and clarification if required.

4.2.1 Corporate Induction and Onboarding

Employees are required to participate in the University's mandatory corporate online Induction program within their first week of employment.

This mandatory program consists of a series of online learning modules addressing workplace health and safety, fire and emergency management, equity and diversity, and compliance related topics. The total time commitment for the online mandatory program is approximately two hours.

In addition to the mandatory online modules, optional face to face corporate Induction and networking forums may be conducted at regular intervals each year which Employees are strongly encouraged to attend.

A number of other recommended Induction and Onboarding programs, online or otherwise, may also apply for identified groups of Employees. Employees will be advised of these recommended programs by their Supervisor.

4.2.2 Work area Induction and Onboarding

In addition to the corporate Induction and Onboarding program, an Employee may also participate in a specific work area training, Onboarding and orientation program, normally conducted by their Supervisor.

This program will cover issues specific to the work area and may vary depending on the location and the Employee's role within the work area and University. Guidelines and checklists are available from the People Portfolio to assist with this program.

4.2.2.1 Workplace health and safety requirements

All Employees must be appropriately trained and briefed by their Supervisor on workplace health and safety requirements and any additional specific training for their job before commencing work. For most Employees, this means they must attend an onsite site-specific workplace health and safety Induction on their first day of employment, in addition to completing the mandatory corporate online safety Induction module. The onsite Induction must include all appropriate job specific training that the Employee may require. Examples include manual handling training for employment which involves lifting or training in emergency Procedures for Employees working in a different building. Supervisors are encouraged to contact the University Safety team for clarification of the training which may be required.
In instances where the online safety Induction module may not be expedient or appropriate, Supervisors can arrange an equivalent safety Induction, for example a group face to face briefing by an appropriate person covering all the required topics or provision of an Induction booklet. Appropriate records must be kept of the training provided and the names of all attendees.

4.3 Record of Induction

A record must be kept of all Induction training, including the online corporate Induction program and any relevant recommended Inductions. Completion Information will be stored in the Employee's training record in the appropriate system and monitored through the University's annual performance review process.

4.4 Annual refresher

Employees are required to refresh their mandatory compliance training requirements annually through completion of the online corporate Induction modules each year. Completion is monitored through the University's annual performance review process.
