

Termination and Separation Policy

1 Purpose

PLEASE NOTE: All human resource management policy instruments are currently under review to ensure alignment with the new Enterprise Agreement. Contact the People Portfolio for more information.

To ensure the exit, termination and separation of Employees is managed efficiently and effectively, and in compliance with the provisions of the Enterprise Agreement, employment agreements and other relevant legislation.

2 Scope

This Policy applies to eligible Employees in applicable positions identified in the Procedures pursuant to this Policy, excluding Employees whose conditions of employment are covered by a written agreement or contract with the University in relation to:

- termination of employment through means such as:
 - resignation or retirement
 - death of an Employee
 - Abandonment of Employment
 - unsatisfactory performance
 - probationary employment
 - serious misconduct
 - ill health
- severance payments
- voluntary severance, redundancy and redeployment.

This Policy applies to all voluntarily exiting Employees in relation to participation in an exit survey or interview.

3 Policy Statement

The University will ensure that termination and separation of Employees is timely, fair and complies with the provisions of the Enterprise Agreement, employment agreements and other relevant legislation.

4 Principles

The University will provide a process for the effective termination or separation of Employees with appropriate consideration of organisational needs, whilst ensuring a transparent and fair process, the provision of associated entitlements, and clear communication of important and sensitive Information.

All Information relating to the termination of employment or separation of Employees will remain confidential to those involved in the process.

The University will provide an opportunity for all voluntarily terminating Employees to participate in a confidential exit survey or interview to discuss the organisation's strengths and weaknesses, provide feedback about their reasons for leaving and to assist with better understanding the variety of experiences of working at the University.

Supervisors are responsible for ensuring all University property of departing Employees is returned in good condition prior to the cessation date.

Separation or termination of employment will be managed in accordance with the requirements of relevant legislation and as specified in the relevant University Procedure.

4.1 Termination of employment

Termination of an Employee may be voluntary or involuntary.

Where termination is voluntary and initiated by the Employee, the Employee must indicate in writing their proposed date of termination, in accordance with relevant Notice periods.

Decisions made by the University to terminate the employment of an Employee will be made in accordance with the Enterprise Agreement. Where employment is terminated for valid reasons, the University will give an Employee Notice and/or compensation.

The process for managing the termination of employment and separation of Employees, together with Notice periods and compensation, is specified in the Termination Procedure and may be as a result of the following.

4.1.1 Resignation or retirement

An Employee must put in writing their intention to resign or retire from the University, indicating the proposed date of separation, and provide the required Notice period in accordance with their employment category. If an Employee fails to give the required Notice, the University may withhold salary or take legal action.

4.1.2 Death

In the event of the death of an Employee, the University will assist the Employee's immediate family, calculate and pay outstanding salary and leave entitlements, and advise the relevant superannuation fund.

4.1.3 Abandonment of Employment

Abandonment of Employment is considered termination of employment at the initiative of the Employee. The circumstances under which an Employee may be deemed to have abandoned their employment are set out in the Termination Procedure.

4.1.4 Unsatisfactory performance

The Vice-Chancellor may terminate employment due to an Employee's unsatisfactory performance in accordance with the provisions of the Termination Procedure and the Improving and Managing Unsatisfactory Performance Procedure.

4.1.5 Probationary employment

If at any time during the probationary period:

- an Employee's progress is considered by the University to be unsatisfactory, or
- if the Employee is not satisfied with the position or the University, either the Employee or the University may terminate the employment subject to giving of the appropriate Notice.

4.1.6 Serious misconduct

In accordance with the Termination Procedure and the Disciplinary Action for Misconduct or Serious Misconduct Procedure, the University may terminate without Notice the employment of an Employee found to have engaged in serious misconduct such that would make it unreasonable to require the University to continue employment during a period of Notice.

4.1.7 Ill health

The University may require an Employee whose capacity to perform the duties of their position is in doubt to undergo a medical examination by a medical practitioner chosen by the University at the expense of the University.

If the medical examination reveals that the Employee is unable to perform assigned duties and is unlikely to be able to resume them within 12 months, the University may offer the Employee the opportunity to resign, or where that is not accepted, terminate the employment. In instances where the Vice-Chancellor decides to terminate employment on the grounds of ill health the standard Notice period will apply.

4.2 Severance payments

A terminating fixed-term Employee with more than twelve months continuous service, for a specific task or project, or research, is entitled to a severance payment calculated in accordance with their period of continuous service, provided specific conditions of eligibility are met as outlined in the Termination Procedure.

4.3 Voluntary severance, redundancy and redeployment

Arrangements, Notice periods and benefits relating to voluntary severance, redundancy, early separation, review and redeployment are outlined in the Voluntary Severance, Redundancy and Redeployment Procedure.

Normally, where an Employee is notified under these provisions that their position is no longer required by the University, the Employee must not seek re-employment in either casual, fixed-term, or continuing modes for a minimum period of two years.

4.3.1 Substantial organisational change

The University may review its structure and operations for reasons which may include, but are not limited to, reasons of an economic, technological, structural or similar nature:

- a decrease in Student load in any Employee program or Course, or combination or mix of programs or Courses, conducted on one or more campuses;
- a Decision to stop offering, or to vary the Employee content of any program or Course, or combination or mix of programs or Courses, conducted on one or more campuses;
- financial exigency within an organisational unit or cost centre; or
- changes in technology or work methods.

4.3.2 Consultation and notification

Where one position is directly impacted by substantial organisational change, the University will consult directly with the impacted Employee and, where requested, their Nominated Representative. Where, after direct consultation, the impacted Employee acknowledges that their position is no longer required, the University will comply with the Enterprise Agreement.

Outcomes of the consultation process will be communicated to the Staff Consultative Committee and will include, but is not limited to, the implementation of the change as it relates to work, conditions and the impact on the Employee's team (where appropriate).

Where there is more than one position impacted by substantial organisational change, or where the impacted individual referenced above is of the view that their position is required, the University will consult in accordance with the Enterprise Agreement.

Where it is likely that a Decision in relation to substantial organisational change will result in one or more positions no longer being required, the University will consult with affected Employees, their Nominated Representative where requested, and the relevant Unions through the Staff Consultative Committee, prior to making the Decision.

4.3.3 Voluntary severance

The University may call for expressions of interest from all Employees interested in taking voluntary severance. Where the University intends to call for expressions of interest, a period of at least two weeks' Notice will be provided to Employees, where practicable.

Where an Employee submits an application for voluntary severance which is accepted by the Vice-Chancellor, the Employee is entitled to a voluntary severance benefit payment, and payment for long service leave in proportion to the Employee's length of service with the University.

4.3.4 Redundancy and redeployment

The University will notify an Employee and their Nominated Representative that their employment will terminate on the grounds of redundancy.

Where an Employee has received notification that their position is no longer required by the University, the Employee may apply to the Vice-Chancellor to seek redeployment to a suitable vacant position within the University, and/or a review of the Decision to terminate the employment, or receive a redundancy payment based on age, length of service and termination date.
